

Investigations into deaths of native species in Northumberland

The Environment Agency is investigating the deaths of endangered native white clawed crayfish.