IT platform helps feed the needy

FOOD-CO, the first IT platform for food support services in Hong Kong, is feeding the needy by matching up food donors and food service operators.

The government-funded initiative has attracted various contributors including charities, restaurants and logistics companies.

The platform supports a collaborative community of hundreds of members who help provide and shuttle food to the poor.

News.gov.hk interviewed the operator of FOOD-CO and some of its members to learn about their experiences.

The story appears on news.gov.hk (September 30) in text and video format.
