

JET's final deuterium-tritium results revealed one year on

One year after the conclusion of JET's final scientific experiments, crucial findings are emerging that will help advance future fusion machines.