Labour challenges Chancellor to use Budget to reverse Conservatives' abysmal house-building record

Ahead of the Budget tomorrow, Labour has revealed that no new 'starter homes' have been built in three years, despite the Conservatives' promise to build 200,000 of them.

'Starter

homes' are a flagship Conservative commitment to first-time buyers, first announced in December 2014. In the Conservatives' 2015 manifesto, they promised to build 200,000 starter homes but none have so far been built.

In

addition to the lack of progress on building starter homes, analysis from Labour shows that the number of new low-cost homes to buy has halved since 2010. There are now 58,000 fewer affordable homes for first-time buyers than if

Labour is

challenging the Chancellor to use tomorrow's Budget to reverse this abysmal record on house-building and to ensure that promised homes are actually built.

John

Healey MP, Labour's Shadow Secretary of State for Housing, said:

"If hot

air built homes, Conservative Ministers would have fixed our housing crisis. Three years after they pledged a big new programme of 'starter homes' for first-time buyers, not a single one has been built.

"Meanwhile,

the number of home-owners under 45 has fallen by 904,000 since 2010 and the number of low-cost homes to buy has halved.

"The

Chancellor must use the Budget to reverse this abysmal record and ensure that the homes they pledge are actually built. No more broken promises.

"The next

Labour government will build 100,000 genuinely affordable homes to rent and buy a year, and help first-time buyers with first-dibs on new homes for local people, a new generation of discounted FirstBuy Homes, and a cut in stamp duty on their first home."
