

Landmark review calls on employers to boost support for autistic people

A bold new government-backed review has set out a vision for workplace culture changes to support autistic people to start and stay in work.