

Largest study of Covid-19 post-mortems could help clinicians treat severe disease

A study led by researchers at Imperial College Healthcare NHS Trust and Imperial College London has found evidence of severe damage to the lungs and signs of blood clotting in major organs in post-mortem examinations of patients who had Covid-19.