

Liam Fox's comments expose the Tories' cavalier approach to Brexit negotiations – Matthew Pennycook

Matthew

Pennycook MP, Shadow Brexit Minister, responding to Liam

Fox's comments to the House of Commons International Trade Committee, saying he is “not afraid” of ending up with no deal, said:

“Liam

Fox's comments expose the cavalier approach the Tories are taking to the Brexit negotiations.

“Senior

Tories seem blind to the realities of what crashing out of Europe without an agreement would mean. It would mean higher prices in the shops, longer queues at the airport and potentially a significant risk for major parts of the economy.

“Theresa

May should call out the fantasy Brexiteers in her own Cabinet and guarantee that an agreement with Europe is reached.”
