

Major breakthrough in rail dispute could signal end of national strikes

The pay proposal could see an end to 2 years of industrial action, protect passengers from further national strikes and improve the reliability of services.