

Mapping out the future of farming

State-of-the-art computer software is helping to equip Scottish agriculture students with the skills they need to become the farmers of the future.