

Memorial trees planted in Oxford to remember lives lost around the world

Health ministers from across the world have come together in a tree-planting ceremony to remember those who have tragically lost their lives to coronavirus (COVID-19).