

MHRA announces a proposed framework for international recognition of medical devices

This initiative signals an important step towards a new regulatory framework for medical devices in Great Britain which protects public health, ensures access to MedTech innovations, and maintains an attractive market for in...