

Microbiology framework created to speed up access to supplies and build threat resilience

The new national public health procurement scheme has gone live to help grow capacity, push innovation and build resilience within microbiology supply chain.