

Myriam Madden appointed as Ofgem Non-Executive Director

Myriam Madden started her roles as Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee at the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) on 1 January 2020.

Myriam has held senior executive finance and operational positions in global technology companies, financial services in the UK, US and Europe, as well as the public sector. An experienced Executive Director, Myriam specialised in business transformation, operational re-structuring and finance in both the private and public sectors.

Myriam is a chartered management accountant and a Board member of the International Ethics Standards Board for Accountants (IESBA). She is also a Board member of Home Group, chairman of their Scottish subsidiary, a board member of the Traverse Theatre and chairman of their Audit committee.

Myriam previously served as a non-executive member of the Audit and Risk Assurance Committee of the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS). She was also a Board member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and President of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants, both global accounting bodies.

Ofgem is a non-ministerial government department and an independent National Regulatory Authority. Its principal objective when carrying out its functions is to protect the interests of existing and future electricity and gas consumers by promoting value for money, promoting security of supply and sustainability, and monitoring the development of markets and competition.

Myriam has taken up her role as a Non-Executive Director (NED) after being found appointable during the recent NED appointment process. The announcement of the NED with a digital transformation background will be made in due course.
