

NASA brings space leaders to London to shape future of microgravity research

Leading space experts from around the world gathered at the Royal Institution today to discuss the future of microgravity research and human presence in low Earth orbit.