

New allergen labelling law to be introduced by government

Government has announced plans to introduce a new allergen labelling law to help further protect the UK's two million people living with food allergy