

New 'brownfield passports' to seize the growth opportunities of urban areas

As part of its brownfield first approach to development, the government has announced plans to support and expedite approval of urban sites, such as car parks.