

New measures to curb underwater noise and accelerate renewable energy

The rules stipulate underwater explosions and construction should be achieved through low-noise methods, accelerating offshore wind projects by preventing building delays.