

New plans set out to transform procurement, providing more value for money and benefitting small business

New plans to overhaul procurement rules, cutting red tape and making it easier for smaller businesses to win government contracts have been launched today.