

New playbook launched to step up construction sector productivity and innovation

New plans on how government will work with the construction sector to make sure public sector works are delivered faster, better and greener have been launched today.