

New police training in sexual offences as more offenders convicted

Thousands of police officers receive new specialised training in investigating sexual offences as more sexual offenders are arrested and convicted.