

New research shows possible Covid-19 link to increase in type 1 diabetes in children

A new study suggests there could be a possible link between Covid-19 and the development of type 1 diabetes in children.