

New study highlights UK role in Australia's wind energy growth

A new study recently launched highlights significant opportunities for the UK to share its wind expertise with Australia.