

New technology to detect knives in public places

New technology designed to spot hidden weapons will be used by police officers in London for the first time today.