

New tool to drive restoration of historic native oyster reefs

A new tool to help increase the native oyster population around the English coast has been launched, the Environment Agency announced today.