

New trade report argues UK should reject 'green protectionism' and harness free market to address climate crisis

A new report published today sets out how free and fair trade can support the low carbon transition and calls on UK to challenge green protectionism.