

New Transport Safety Officers to crack down on anti-social behaviour

Backed by £2.5 million of funding, specially-trained officers will enhance public safety and help prevent violence against women and girls on and around public transport.