

News story: New powers granted to research gene editing in plants

Simplified gene editing rules make it easier for researchers to develop more nutritious and resilient crops, which require fewer pesticides.