

News story: UK to tackle danger of the solar wind and find new Earth-like planets

New national space funding worth £7 million will ensure UK scientists play a leading role in a new space weather mission, the Science Minister Chris Skidmore announced on the first day of British Science Week (8 March).