

Paul Nuttall does not stand up for working people – Lavery

Ian

Lavery, Labour's Elections and National Campaign Co-ordinator, responding to Paul Nuttall's speech to UKIP Spring Conference, said:

"You cannot trust a word Paul Nuttall says, he'll say anything to try and get elected. His speech today is simply more empty rhetoric from the leader of a failing party that has no answers to the challenges we face.

"Paul Nuttall does not stand up for working people, just as he does not stand up for the people of Stoke. All he wants is to get to Westminster to back the Tories and privatise our NHS. A vote for him is a vote to break up the health service as we know it."
