

Press release: Government pilot to help parents and carers return to policing

Police officers and police staff investigators who have left the force to start a family, or care for a relative or a friend, will be able to return to permanent jobs through a new project launched today (5th March) by Minister for Women and Equalities Penny Mordaunt.