

Press release: Marine and coastal areas linked with better health and well-being

A Defra study shows that exposure to marine and coastal environments has positive effects on human health and well-being.