

Press release: Preventable illness is factor in slower life expectancy increases

A new report from Public Health England shows that preventable illness is one of many factors behind slowdown in raising life expectancy.