

Press release: UK aid project helps cut violence against women by more than half in Democratic Republic of Congo

A project working to challenge the social acceptance of violence against women and girls in the DRC saw women's experience of domestic violence fall from 69% to 29% after two years of intervention.