

Prime Minister unveils game changing investment to tackle national security threat from people smuggling gangs

The Prime Minister is set to announce an additional £75 million to boost border security, bringing the investment in the Border Security Command over the next two years to £150 million.