

Proposed changes to egg labelling rules support British industry

Producers will no longer need to change how eggs are labelled during housing orders, saving farmers from costly labelling