

Published Report linking the environment and mental health

The Environmental Science and Mental Health Review, commissioned by NERC via the VN programme, is now available. This report outlines where and how environmental science can play a role in the mental health domain. For more information and to download the report, click here