

Push to better understand sources affecting bathing water quality

An extensive programme of testing is being carried out around Bridlington in a bid to find out sources impacting on bathing water quality.