

Rare “river jelly lichen” discovered in the River Sprint

One of the world's rarest lichens has been discovered in a Cumbrian River for the first time in memory and represents a significant biodiversity milestone.