

Reading murders

I send my condolences to the families of the three people murdered yesterday evening in a series of senseless stabbings. It is difficult to find words to console in such a dreadful circumstance.

I am glad many others evaded the planned mass slaughter and grateful to the emergency services for their interventions.