

Real world data analysis provides critical insight on vaccination programme and supports evidence that single dose reduces infection

Analysis of north west London data from the beginning of the national Covid-19 vaccination programme has further supported the evidence that a single dose of the Covid-19 vaccine is effective in reducing infection with coronavirus for up to 60 days after vaccination.