

Refreshed DSIT board to guide plans to transform public services and close digital divide

Newly appointed non-executive directors from business, academia, and charities will guide DSIT in using science and technology to enhance public services, promote digital inclusion, and drive economic growth.