

Report: Marine geospatial collaboration will reaffirm the UK's role as a global leader in ocean science

A collaborative study from partners across government, industry and academia reveals that groups responsible for gathering marine geospatial information must find new, more efficient ways of working together.