

Rescued green turtle returns to sea (with photo)

The Agriculture, Fisheries and Conservation Department (AFCD) released a green turtle in the southern waters of Hong Kong today (September 2).

The green turtle was rescued by AFCD officers in October 2022 in the waters near Chi Ma Wan Peninsula of Lantau Island. Following an initial check-up by the AFCD, the turtle was taken to Ocean Park Hong Kong (OPHK). It was assessed by veterinarians of OPHK and placed under their continuous monitoring and veterinary care.

An AFCD spokesman said, "The green turtle weighs around 39 kilograms, and its carapace length measures about 66 centimetres. It was assessed by the veterinarians of OPHK as being in good condition and ready to return to the sea. The Department is thankful to the veterinarians and staff of OPHK for taking care of it."

Before the green turtle was released to the sea, the AFCD tagged it with a microchip and an Inconel tag for future identification. A satellite transmitter was also attached to the carapace of the turtle. By tracking the movement and feeding grounds of the green turtle in the sea, the AFCD can collect data for formulating appropriate conservation measures and will share its findings with conservation authorities of other regions for better conservation of green turtles through concerted efforts.

Green turtle is a globally endangered species and the only sea turtle species known to nest locally. In Hong Kong, all wild turtles (including sea turtles) are protected by the Wild Animals Protection Ordinance (Cap. 170). No person shall hunt or wilfully disturb, possess, sell or export sea turtles. Otherwise, offenders will be liable to a maximum fine of $100,000 and imprisonment for one year. Upon conviction, the specimens will also be forfeited.

In addition, all sea turtle species are listed in Appendix I to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora and regulated under the Protection of Endangered Species of Animals and Plants Ordinance (Cap. 586) in Hong Kong. The import, introduction from the sea, export, re-export or possession of specimens of sea turtles not in accordance with the Ordinance is an offence. The maximum penalty upon conviction is a fine of $10 million and imprisonment for 10 years, and the specimens will also be forfeited.

Members of the public are urged to report any sightings of sea turtles or suspected irregularities involving sea turtles to the AFCD on 1823.
