

Research and analysis: National Child Measurement Programme: childhood obesity

Research by University College London (UCL) shares learning from local authorities that have a downward trend in childhood obesity, including practice examples.