

Residents and business owners to be given final say on proposed street name changes

All councils in England will need to get agreement from two-thirds of people who live or run businesses on a street before changing its name.