The Secretary for Innovation and Technology, Mr Alfred Sit, visited his alma mater Tang King Po School today (July 17) to meet with students sitting Hong Kong Diploma of Secondary Education Examination (HKDSE) this year and encouraged them not to give up.

At the sharing session held ahead of the HKDSE results release, Mr Sit chatted with students and listened to their views on subject selection and development plans. He said that innovation and technology is high on the Government's agenda and young people taking up science and technology will have ample opportunities.

Mr Sit extended his best wishes to the students. He added that even if their results are not as good as expected, as long as they choose their right directions according to their interests and aptitudes and try their best to realise their aspirations, they will surely find their paths to bright future.
