

Satellites could become more sustainable, thanks to new UK Space Agency funding

The UK Space Agency has announced funding for work which aims to prolong the life of satellites, as part of efforts to ensure space remains sustainable for future generations.