

Scotland's natural economy valued at over £29 billion per annum

A new report has defined and detailed for the first time the value of the 'natural economy' to Scotland's overall economic output, finding it represents more than a fifth of the nation's economy.