

Security boss convicted for deploying staff with cloned licences

The boss of a security firm has been given a suspended sentence after he deployed door supervisors with cloned licences to venues across London.