

Space age manufacturing to boost frontline support

A British SME is building the world's first in-space manufacturing platform that will be used to create crucial components of defence capabilities.